Marine Corps Community Services and the K-Bay Rod and Gun Club held the 4th Annual archery tournament Saturday at the archery range aboard MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay.

More than 25 participants entered the contest to display their marksmanship skills as they used traditional longbows, compound bows and arrows.

Archers took aim at 15 different heavy, foam-rubber, 3-D targets of animals at ranges from 30 to 90 feet. They did this for two rounds, in which they tried to obtain the highest score in more than six categories of competition.

Deer, pigs, turkeys and even a bear couldn't escape the wooden and metal arrows the participants projected at the targets, some travelling as fast as 300 feet per second. Specific areas of the targets were designated as lethal hits, and non-lethal hits, with the objective being to obtain a lethal hit on the first arrow every time. "The reason we use 3-D targets during the competition is so people get used to hunting animals, and making a humane kill," said Scott Saltz, the event coordinator.

Even newcomers and youths were given bows and arrows, and encouraged to compete alongside veteran archers.

"This is a very challenging recreational sport and a lot of people don't even realize these activities are here," said bow and arrow first-timer, Joshua L. Rule. "I think it's good, clean fun."

The day's competition yielded some very impressive scores, which even had the veterans shaking their heads in disbelief.

First place winner in the compound bow category Lionel Hamilton scored an eye-opening perfect 600 points. In the traditional longbow competition, John Hurt won with a score of 522. In the youth category, Brad Saltz won with a near perfect score of 598.

For anyone interested in joining the K-Bay Rod and Gun Club, there are meetings every first and third Tuesday of every month at the Bachelor Officer Quarters conference room, aboard MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay.

Young and old alike were encouraged to try archery for their first time while learning important safety tips during the 4th Annual MCCS and K-Bay Rod and Gun Club tournament on Saturday.

This pig target was punctured by five arrows during the tournament.

In contrast to their early American ancestors, these arrows are made from metal and plastic instead of wood, stone and feathers.

BayFest bangs for your bucks

Debbie Aisoff
MCCS Public Affairs

Get more bang for your buck and help a good cause. The largest watersports carnival on the Windward side is BayFest 2001 and it’s staged for July 13 – 15 aboard Marine Corps Base Hawaii and is proudly sponsored by Hawaiian Electric Company, Inc. and GEM of Hawaii.

Did you know that every year a portion of BayFest proceeds is returned to the eight tenant MCB Hawaii commands? Last year, a total of $20,244.00 was presented to MCB Hawaii’s Commanding General, Brig. Gen. R.E. Parker, Jr. to be distributed evenly among each command.

Each BayFest, MCB Hawaii opens the gates to the public and is visited by more than 30,000 patrons.

Along with the adrenaline-rushing E.K. Fernandez carnival rides, BayFest offers many contests including the build-your-own Bathtub Regatta boat race, and swimming suit competition. Boxing bouts and wrestling matches continually woo eager crowds as does mainland and local musical groups.

Mark your calendars now and don’t miss BayFest 2001. For a BayFest update, logon to the BayFest website www.bayfest hawaii.com
